

3. Organisation of vascular services

Introduction

Patients with an abdominal aortic aneurysm should expect to be cared for in a setting with the appropriate facilities available, and treated by staff of the right expertise. These criteria should apply whether the patient is undergoing elective or emergency aortic aneurysm repair. This chapter will examine how well hospitals met these requirements.